

Just about right For the time being

- Forget about being interdisciplinary. Let it come naturally!
- To be interdisciplinary you got to have that expertise.
- Don't keep it to yourself. Communication is crucial.
- This BBS doesn't come easy.

Topic of the Day

- Why is being interdisciplinary so hard?

If it comes natural, no one needs to talk about it.

You'd expect everyone to be doing it.

But that does not seem to be the case. Why is that?

- At Interfaculty Initiative in Information Studies, what should we be learning?

If expertise comes first, should we not acquire special knowledge from existing postgraduate or major courses? What can we learn here?
